

The foremost authority on school business.

History of the CASBO Schuyler C. Joyner Award

The Schuyler C. Joyner Award is one of CASBO's most prestigious awards and was created in 1987 to honor CASBO's 1938-39 president, who has been credited with transforming school business administration into a profession.

Schuyler C. Joyner, or "Sky," as he was known, was the 1954 president of the National Association of School Business Officials, where he was described as a "strong force nationally in bringing professional recognition to the school business community."

Sky Joyner's long career spanned time in the Pasadena Unified School District and then in the Los Angeles Unified School District, from which he retired as Deputy Superintendent for Business and Education Services.

He was a recognized authority on school district insurance coverage and is credited with having saved American school districts millions of dollars throughout the years.

Each year, the associate members of CASBO present the Sky Joyner Award to a CASBO member who has demonstrated similar outstanding leadership, service and commitment to both school business and to the association.

The recipient is chosen by the CASBO Associate Member Committee, and in addition to the individual recognition, a scholarship of $5,000 is awarded to the high school or community college of the recipient's choice.
